

EFFINGHAM is a parish and pleasant scattered village on the Upper London road, between Guildford and Leatherhead, $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles south-west from Bookham station on the Leatherhead extension line of the London and South Western railway; Effingham Junction station is locally in Horsley, $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles from London, $3\frac{1}{2}$ west-south-west from Leatherhead, 8 east-north-east from Guildford, $4\frac{1}{2}$ north-west from Dorking, in the Reigate div. of the county, and gives name to the hundred of Effingham, in Dorking petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Leatherhead, archdeaconry of Surrey and diocese of Winchester. The village is supplied with gas by the Leatherhead Gas and Lighting Company from works in Kingston road Leatherhead, and with water by the Leatherhead and District Water Works Company from works at Fetcham. This place gave name to the title of Baron in the Howard family in 1553, and to that of Earl in 1837. The church of St. Lawrence is of flint and brick in the Gothic style, and has a tower, rebuilt with brick in 1757, containing a clock and several bells; the east window and others are stained: the church was restored in 1888: there are 300 sittings. The register, in good preservation, dates from 1565. The living is a vicarage, net income £100, with residence and 9 acres of glebe, let for £10, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1882 by the Rev. Ernest Frederic Bayly M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. Here is a Catholic church, built in 1913, and a small Wesleyan chapel, built in 1854. A charity of £11 yearly left by Henry Smith, of Wandsworth, and alderman of London, who died 30 Jan.

1628, is distributed in bread, usually in February and March. Dunley Hill, the property of the trustees of the late Admiral Maxse, is now (1918) unoccupied; Effingham Manor is the property and residence of Robert Calburn esq. The Lodge is the residence of George Pauling esq. The manors in this parish are Effingham-le-Leigh, Effingham and East Court; besides which, part of the parish is in the manor of Byfleet and other parts are in the manors of Little Bookham and East and West Horsley. The trustees of the late Caesar Czarnikow esq. of Effingham Hill, and the trustees of the late Col. Evelyn Latimer Parratt, who are lords of the manors, and the Earl of Lovelace, are principal landowners. The soil is a light marl; subsoil, chalk and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 3,183 acres; rateable value, £5,905; the population in 1911 was 643 in the civil and 627 in the ecclesiastical parish.
